WE ARE

The Publications Office of the European Union is the official provider of publishing services to all EU institutions, bodies, and agencies. As such, it is the central point of access to EU law, and also to publications, data, research results, procurement notices and other official information. The Publications Office therefore plays a central role in informing the public about what the EU does and means for them, and in unlocking the power of data. Its mission is to support EU policies as a centre of excellence for data, information and knowledge management, and to ensure that this broad range of information is available to the public as accessible and reusable data to facilitate transparency, economic activity and the diffusion of knowledge. The Publications Office publishes in all the official languages of the European Union and continuously adapts its services to a rapidly evolving technological environment (e.g. data services, cloud computing, machine learning and artificial intelligence). Unit A.4 'Data, Information and Knowledge Dissemination and Preservation Services' is responsible for delivering library, information, and physical and digital preservation services both to the European Commission and at the interinstitutional level. It has the key role of ensuring that Commission staff have access to authoritative, evidence-based resources to support them in their daily work. The unit also develops tools and services for data, information, and knowledge dissemination and preservation for use at the Publications Office and beyond. It is made up of two sectors: the EC Library and Long-term Preservation. The EC Library itself is split over two sites – one in Brussels and one in Luxembourg. Its staff work collectively to ensure the timely delivery of data and information to all its users. Through a suite of services, the unit is committed to fostering an environment of active enquiry, idea generation, open debate and collaboration. It works together with other libraries within the EU institutions and beyond to share experiences and build common services where appropriate. The Long-term Preservation team, based in Luxembourg, is responsible for preserving EU publications in both analogue and digital formats, ensuring access not only for today but for future generations. Beyond the Commission, the unit promotes its unique collections covering the EU project, which would be of interest to anyone researching the wider story of EU integration.
